

Hi there!

I am excited you are getting to know our amazing team through the interview process! This note is intended to give you a better understanding of what it is like to work at Podium and ensure that Podium's unique culture is a good fit for you and you are a good fit for Podium.

What started out as us helping my dad with his tire shop in 2014 has become a mission to help local businesses everywhere compete and win in today's tech-enabled world. Local businesses are the backbone of every modern economy and we have the opportunity to become the operating system for millions of them. Our platform fundamentally changes the way local businesses operate and we are proud of the impact we have on local communities every day.

We have incredible product market fit and constantly innovate by learning from our customers, but ultimately our growth is powered by hiring and developing amazing people. Working at Podium is collaborative and energizing, and we are a performance-driven company. Our team members take ownership of their work, act like founders, and tackle aspirational goals together. We have a strong culture and work hard to preserve it through hiring people who will thrive here.

We do not have relaxed standards or easy jobs. The level of commitment and effort required to succeed at Podium is not for everyone. That's OK! But if you get fulfillment from working incredibly hard and winning with an amazing team, you will not find a better place to learn, grow, and accelerate your career.

You will find our Operating Principles on our website: podium.com/operating-principles. These principles represent how we get things done and serve as a shortcut for decision-making at Podium. If this letter and our operating principles resonate with you, Podium would likely be a great place for you.

We look forward to getting to know you better. Best of luck with your interviews!
Eric Rea, Co-Founder / CEO