

TEKMETRIC

CANDIDATE FAQ

Everything you need to know about applying and interviewing at Tekmetric.

WONDERING ABOUT YOUR APPLICATION STATUS?

You'll hear from us within 3-4 weeks if you're moving forward. Because of application volume, we're not able to provide individual status updates outside of that - including through social media or our customer support line. The fastest way to get answers is right here in this FAQ.

THE APPLICATION

How long does it take to hear back after I apply?

Most candidates hear back within 3-4 weeks. We're a lean team and application volume is high. We're only able to respond individually to candidates moving forward in the process. We'll keep your resume on file - if a role opens that aligns with your background, we'll be in touch.

Can I check my application status on social media or with customer support?

Our social media team and customer support line aren't able to access application information. If you're moving forward in the process, you'll hear from a recruiter directly. If you don't hear from us within 3-4 weeks, we've moved forward with other candidates - but your resume stays on file for future opportunities.

Can I apply to more than one role at once?

Yes. If multiple roles genuinely fit your experience, apply to each - we review your background for every position separately. That said, focus on the role that best matches your experience. Applying broadly tends to hurt more than it helps.

What should I include in my application?

An up-to-date resume is the most important thing. If the role calls for a portfolio or work samples, the job posting will say so. Keep your resume clear and focused. We're looking for relevant experience and impact.

I applied before - do I need to apply again?

Yes. Submitting a fresh application for a specific open role is the best way to be considered, especially if your experience has grown since your last one. We may also reach out proactively if a new role matches a previous applicant's background.

THE INTERVIEW PROCESS

What happens after I apply?

A real human on our Talent Acquisition team reviews your application - no AI screening, no shortcuts. If your background is a fit, we'll reach out directly with next steps. If you don't hear from us within 3–4 weeks, we've likely moved forward with other candidates, but your information stays on file for future roles.

How long between interview stages?

Expect to hear back within about a week between stages. Your recruiter will keep you informed if there's any delay - you shouldn't have to wonder where things stand.

What does each stage of the interview process look like?

- 1. Recruiter screen: A 30–45 minute video call with someone from our Talent Acquisition team. We'll cover your background, what you're looking for, and answer questions about the role and Tekmetric.
- 2. Hiring manager interview: A deeper conversation with the hiring manager. Expect questions about your experience, how you approach problems, and how you'd contribute to the role.
- 3. Skills assessment and/or panel interviews: Depending on the role, this may include a take-home exercise, technical screens, or panel interviews with a few teammates. We'll explain exactly what to expect before this stage.

4. Final executive interview: This interview may cover company vision, strategy, and leadership approach. It may also touch on personal leadership philosophy and decision-making.

Not every role follows every step - your recruiter will walk you through the specific process for your position.

Will interviews be remote or in person?

Most interviews take place over video. If your process includes an in-person component, your recruiter will let you know in advance and provide all logistics.

How should I prepare?

Familiarize yourself with Tekmetric's product, mission, and the auto repair industry. Be ready to talk through specific examples from your experience - we lean toward behavioral and situational questions. Your recruiter will share any prep materials specific to your stage.

Can I request accommodations for the interview process?

Yes. If you need any accommodation to participate fully in the interview process, let your recruiter know and we'll do our best to make it happen.

~~~~~

OFFERS & DECISIONS

How long does it take to receive an offer after a final interview?

We move quickly. Most candidates receive a decision within 1-2 weeks of their final interview. If anything delays the timeline, your recruiter will keep you informed.

I wasn't selected. Can I get feedback?

Because of application volume, we aren't able to provide individual feedback when no interview occurred. If you reached the interview stage and weren't selected, your recruiter will follow up with feedback.

~~~~~

WORKING AT TEKMETRIC

Is Tekmetric remote, hybrid, or in-office?

Work arrangements vary by role - the job posting will specify whether a position is remote, hybrid, or in-office. Your recruiter is the best person to ask about flexibility for a specific role. Regardless of the model, all employees are expected to travel a few times per year for kickoff events, new hire training, and team on-sites.

Do you sponsor work visas?

Currently, Tekmetric isn't able to sponsor work visas. All candidates must be authorized to work in the United States without employer sponsorship now or in the future.

How do I contact the recruiting team with a question?

If you're already in our process, your recruiter is your best point of contact - just reply to any email they've sent. If you're reaching out cold, the best path is to apply directly through our careers page and note your question in your application.

Tekmetric will never ask for your personal financial or banking information or require any financial commitment as part of our candidate search or application process. No job offers will be made without a formal interview process. All legitimate Tekmetric job postings are listed at tekmetric.com/careers. Recruiter communications come from @tekmetric.com email addresses.